1986 CAP AND GOWN

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE SOUTH
VOLUME 88

THE GOWN

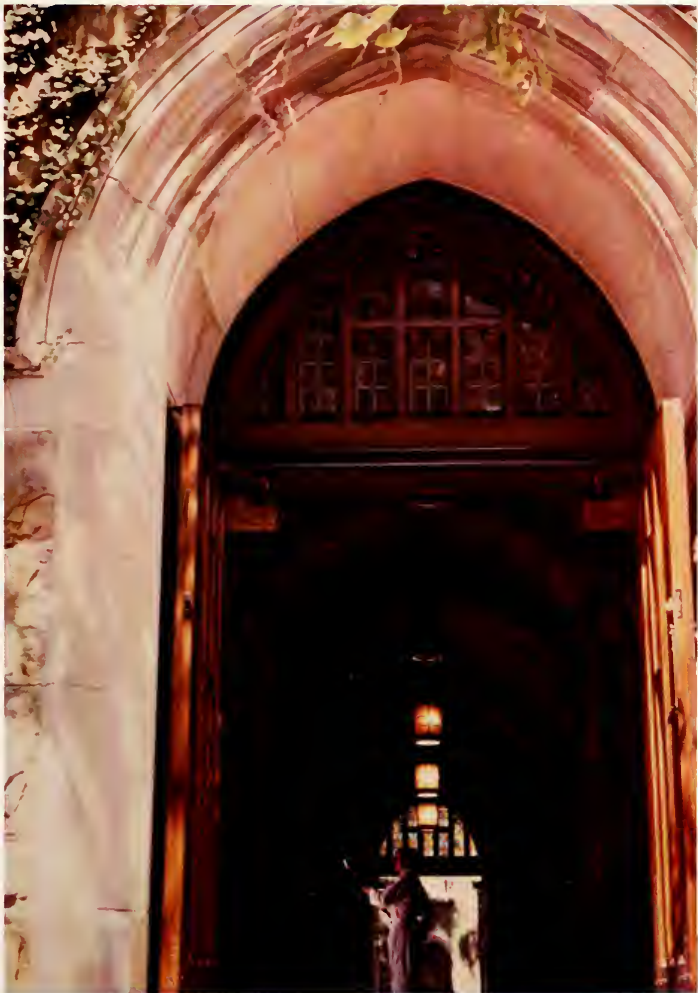

Once worn by all students, it is now restricted to the Order of Gownsmen as a symbol of academic excellence, leadership, and character. It is probably the most desired object on the Mountain. Most hope to have earned it before they take their comprehensives. Many dread Opening Convocation because they have yet to receive it.

This tradition of the academic gown is now limited almost exclusively to the ivory towers of the University of the South. Here the gown has been worn for 115 years. May it continue to thrive in Sewanee's academe.

ARE GOWNSMEN HUMAN?

Ask a freshman and he might say no. Ask an upperclassman and he will probably give you the same answer—though not for the same reasons. Ask a professor and he will more than likely say yes—even while wondering about the superhuman overnight achievements of many gownsmen.

There is a certain mystique surrounding these black-robed inhabitants of Sewanee's hallowed halls. The gown is almost magical in its attributes. Once donned, the wearer, be he student or professor, attains a certain aura which inspires respect and brings the traditions of days gone by into mind.

To the members of the Order of Gownsmen, the 1986 Cap and Gown is dedicated . . . even though the question remains undecided.

WOODS LAB

Twenty Third Psalm

Science is my shepherd; I shall not write in active voice.
It maketh me to take many labs.
It leadeth me past false hypotheses.
It boggles my mind.
It maketh me to learn precision for my grade's sake.
Yea, though I walk through our technical society I shall fear no computer.
Einstein and Descartes, they guideth me.
It asketh me questions to which I know not the answers.
It causeth anxiety.
Its usefulness and its power, they comfort me.
Surely, headaches and all-nighters will follow me all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in the house of J. Albert
Woods forever.

Woods Lab

Ten Commandments

- Thou shalt not anthropomorphise.
- Thou shalt not spend less than eight hours per day in Wood's Lab.
- Thou shalt accept the customs of those who know not Science.
- Thou shalt turn thy lab reports in on time.
- Honor thy professors and lab assistants.
- Thou shalt not strike thy computer.
- Thou shalt not forget thy formulas.
- Thou shalt not deface the maps in thy classrooms.
- Thou shalt not falsify data.
- Thou shalt not cover thy neighbor's "A", even though it is the only one in class; his computer program that works; his Olympic winning rat; his perfectly labeled drawings; his pale pink end point with a phenolphthaline indicator; his programmable calculator; or his lab report that Dr. Lowe likes.

O winged beast with eyes of night
Perched resting from its impish flight

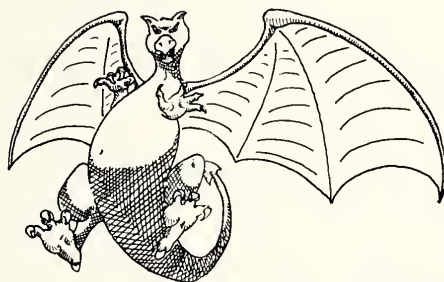

In shadow shunning light of day
Silent awaits its chosen prey.

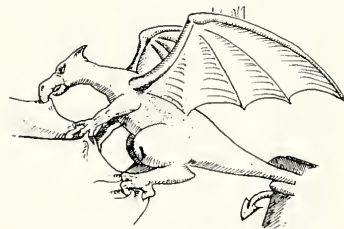

Caught in sight of darting eye
Approaching victim does it spy:

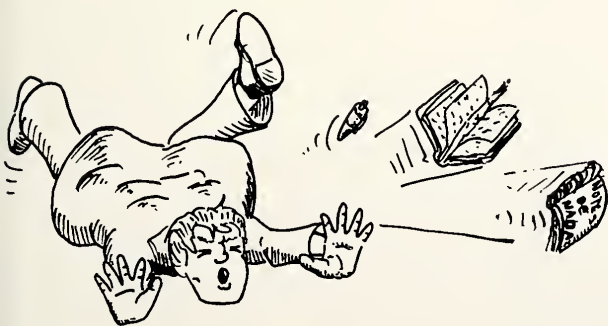

It spreads its wings and tail alike
And poses poised, prepared to strike.

It springs from perch at missile's pace
And darts across the closing space:

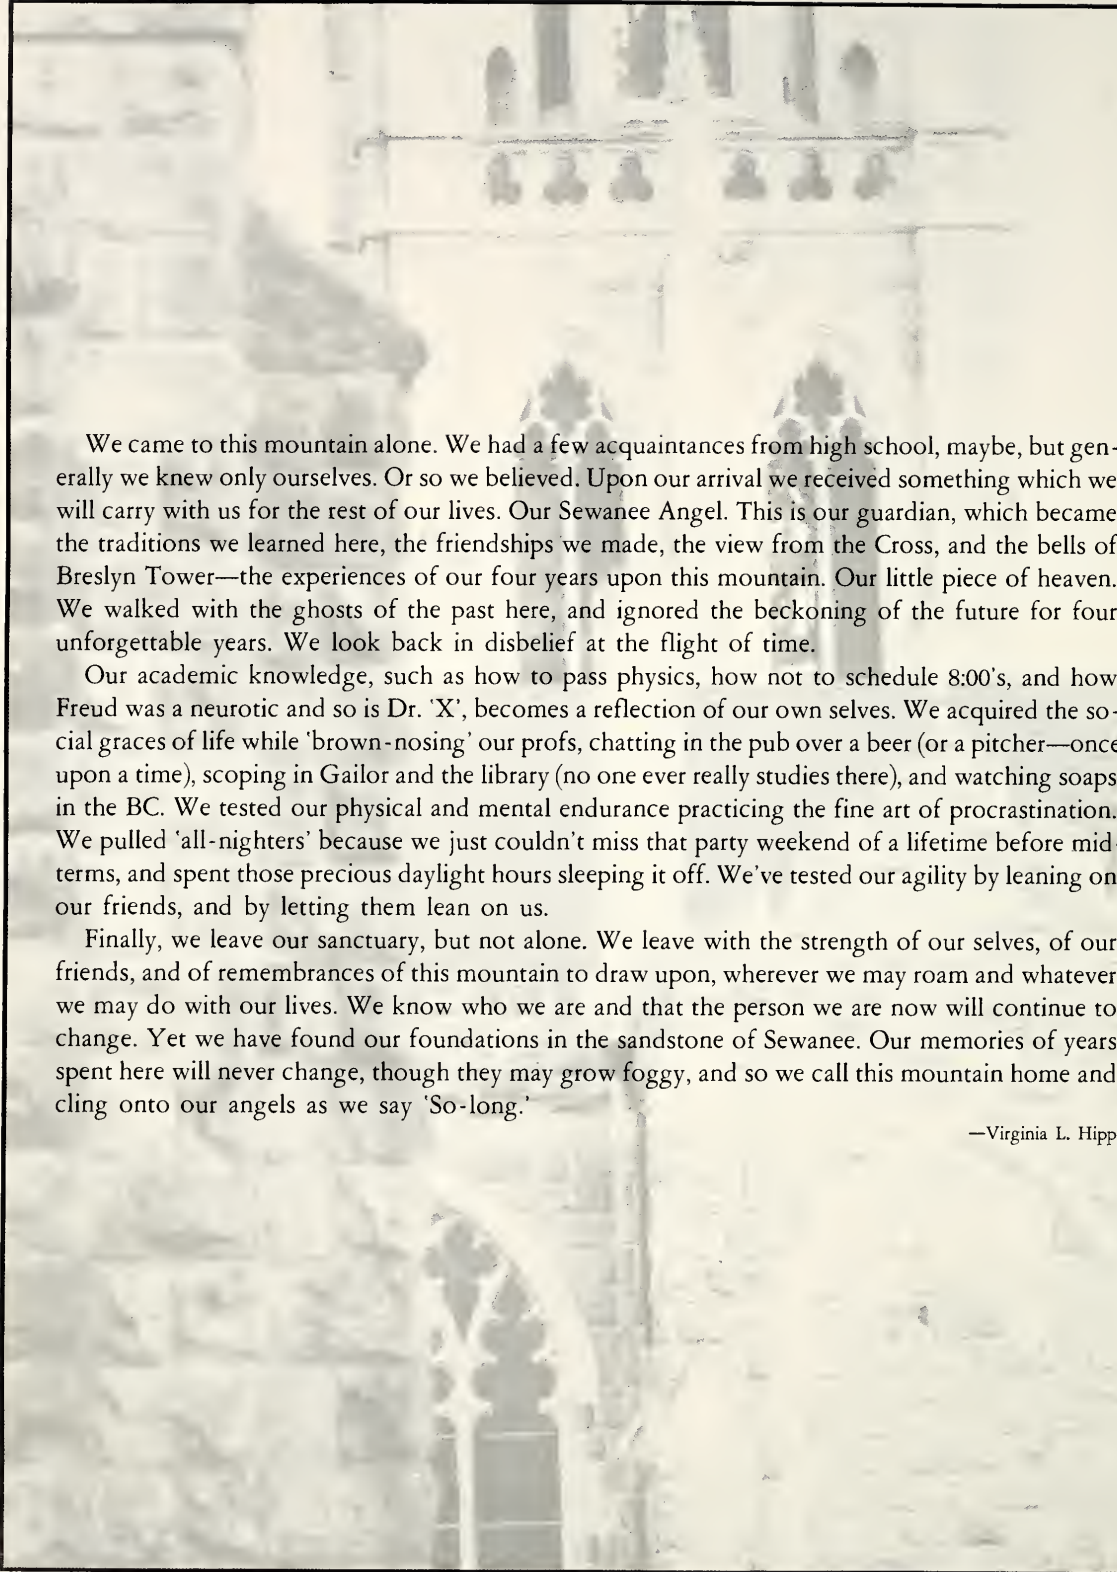

Digs in its claws with death's iron clasp
The victim snared is his at last!

SPLAT!

"What happened, man?"
"I, I—dunno—I guess I tripped or something."

We came to this mountain alone. We had a few acquaintances from high school, maybe, but generally we knew only ourselves. Or so we believed. Upon our arrival we received something which we will carry with us for the rest of our lives. Our Sewanee Angel. This is our guardian, which became the traditions we learned here, the friendships we made, the view from the Cross, and the bells of Breslyn Tower—the experiences of our four years upon this mountain. Our little piece of heaven. We walked with the ghosts of the past here, and ignored the beckoning of the future for four unforgettable years. We look back in disbelief at the flight of time.

Our academic knowledge, such as how to pass physics, how not to schedule 8:00's, and how Freud was a neurotic and so is Dr. 'X', becomes a reflection of our own selves. We acquired the social graces of life while 'brown-nosing' our profs, chatting in the pub over a beer (or a pitcher—once upon a time), scoping in Gailor and the library (no one ever really studies there), and watching soaps in the BC. We tested our physical and mental endurance practicing the fine art of procrastination. We pulled 'all-nighters' because we just couldn't miss that party weekend of a lifetime before mid-terms, and spent those precious daylight hours sleeping it off. We've tested our agility by leaning on our friends, and by letting them lean on us.

Finally, we leave our sanctuary, but not alone. We leave with the strength of our selves, of our friends, and of remembrances of this mountain to draw upon, wherever we may roam and whatever we may do with our lives. We know who we are and that the person we are now will continue to change. Yet we have found our foundations in the sandstone of Sewanee. Our memories of years spent here will never change, though they may grow foggy, and so we call this mountain home and cling onto our angels as we say 'So-long.'
